U.S. Won't Condemn Israel; Offers 5 Point Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States today proposed a five-point program for peace in the Middle East to be achieved by Arab-Israeli negotiations with "appropriate third party assistance."

Rejects Soviet Demands
U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg, rejecting Soviet demands for condemnation and punishment of Israel for the results of its lightning victory over the Arabs, laid out the American proposal on the lines of President Johnson's policy speech Monday.

Goldberg told the 122-member assembly, meeting in special session on the Middle East crisis, that the "bomb of hostility" must be defused but that the explosive itself would have to be removed if a durable peace was to be achieved.

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, whose Monday maiden speech to the assembly blasted virtually every phase of U.S. foreign policy, failed to make an appearance at the assembly as the session reopened.

Suggests Mediation
Goldberg did not spell out in detail what was meant by "appropriate third party assistance," but the phrase suggested a possibility of international mediation in the Arab-Israeli dispute.

The U.S. resolution introduced by Goldberg called for negotiations based on mutual recognition of the political independence and territorial integrity of all countries in the area. The other points of the resolution called for freedom of innocent maritime passage in vital waterways, just and equitable solution of the Arab refugee problem, registration and limitation of arms shipments to Middle East countries, and recognition of the right of all sovereign nations to exist in peace and security.

These were the principles Johnson laid down Monday. The President had said "there must be progress toward all if there is to be progress toward any."

Keyed to Moderation
In contrast with Kosygin's speech Monday, Goldberg's address was keyed to moderation. He spoke of "legitimate grievances on all sides of this bitter conflict," and said a "full settlement should deal equitably with legitimate grievances and outstanding questions from whichever side they are raised."

"In short, Mr. President," he said, "a new foundation for peace must be built in the Middle East."

He said it would not be easy, "but the United Nations has an urgent obligation to facilitate them and to help rebuild an atmosphere in which fruitful discussions will be possible."

"Let no one say that solutions are impossible."

Goldberg told the assembly it could "unite for peace or divide in discord."

In his carefully measured response, Goldberg made it clear that President Johnson's policy speech Monday was the basis upon which the United States was appealing both to the assembly and to the Soviet Union as the other great world power.

He stressed at the outset the President's assurance that the United States "will do its part for peace in every forum, at every level, at every hour."

Kosygin failed to make an appearance as the assembly reconvened. Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and other members of the Soviet delegation were in their places.

"As the troubles of the Middle East are great, so also must our purposes be great," Goldberg told the assembly. "It is not enough to defuse the bomb of hostility; we must remove the explosive itself. Our ultimate aim must be nothing less than a stable and durable peace in the Middle East."

"Our task is far from easy. We may all 'unite for peace' in the abstract; but our real task is, for the sake of peace, to unite upon a course of action. This course must be rooted both in fidelity to the principles and purposes of the Charter and in a clear grasp of the historical events which have led to the present situation."

Two Contentions
The Soviet contention is that Israel must immediately evacuate territories it overran in a blitzkrieg against the Arabs, return captured material, make restitution for damages to the Arabs and be condemned for "aggression."

The United States contends that Israel and the Arabs, as

Searchers Reach Plane Wreck Site

BY CHARLES BERMPOHL

Rescue teams reached the scene of the wrecked Piper Aztec on 3,800 foot High Peak Mountain in Greene County shortly before noon today and are in the process of recovering the bodies of the two pilots.

The operation marks the end of a week-long search for the plane reported missing last Tuesday in a flight from Albany to Kingston.

Other Search Continues
Dead in the wreckage are Taylor LeRoy Steelman, 24, of Guilford, Conn., the pilot, and Richard Johnson, 27, of Branford, Conn., the co-pilot. Johnson was married a week prior to the accident.

Bodies of the two men were found ejected from the plane and still strapped to the seats, about 50 feet from each other. Wreckage was scattered over the area with one engine torn out and hurtled about 50 feet from the fuselage.

Meanwhile, search continues for a Canadian private single-engine Beech Bonanza missing since Sunday with four persons aboard.

The Bonanza was last heard from 12 miles south of Montreal Airport on a flight destined over Burlington, Vt., Glens Falls and Poughkeepsie, N.Y., to New York City.

Areas of Vermont, New York, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania are being combed for the craft which was piloted by G. Boisbert of Montreal. His wife and two children were passengers.

Wings Torn Away
Wreckage of the Piper Aztec was spotted Monday by Walter Glass, a pilot for Industrial Flying service of Schenectady who was flying from Kingston to Albany.

Troopers reached the scene at 10 p. m. Monday. They reported both wings were torn from the plane which apparently smashed through some trees before hitting the crest of the rugged mountain, the highest in the area.

At 9:37 a. m. today rescue teams under the supervision of District 12 Forest Ranger Victor D. Schrader started the precarious ascent to the crash site. A dozen men left the base site at the 2,300 foot level in three jeeps. From the 2,800 foot level, they had to go on foot up the sheer side of the mountain which was described by one searcher as like "walking up the side of a building."

Involved in the final trek were Leeds State Police, Department of Conservation forest rangers, BCI men and the Tannersville Rescue Squad. They carried two rubber stretchers and two Stokes metal stretchers as well as radio equipment for constant contact with base areas. The Civil Air Patrol cordoned the perimeter of the search area preventing curiosity seekers from reaching the scene.

The twin-engine plane smashed into the tree-covered northeast side of the mountain and came to rest on a ledge about 75 feet below the peak. Steelman was at the controls and Johnson was co-pilot.

Shrouded in Fog
The surrounding countryside was shrouded in fog at the time of the accident.

Fog and rain throughout the week hampered search efforts which were conducted under the direction of the Dutchess County Civil Air Patrol.

Numerous reports of low-flying planes and spotted wreckage were checked out to no avail. Rescuers last week thought they had found the plane when a wreck was sighted in Dutchess County near the Connecticut border. It proved to be a plane downed five years ago.

In another incident Friday, a motorist on Wittenberg Mountain, Ulster County, spotted what he thought was plane debris in a wooded area. This also proved to be a false lead.

Ground search in the Shokan area turned up wreckage of a military plane which crashed in the 1940's.

The Piper Aztec was owned by New Haven Airway Charter Service and had left Albany to pick up passengers from Ulster Kingston Airport on their way to New Haven.

Wide Search
Search for the single engine Canadian plane centers in a wide area of southern and central Vermont. As yet, no clues of the craft have been found.

It was reported weather conditions were the poorest in the Lake George region at the time the plane was in flight. Search operations in that area Monday failed to produce any evidence of the plane.

Mountain areas of Vermont and New York State as well as Connecticut and Massachusetts are being covered by air searchers.

There are conflicting reports as to the number of passengers aboard the Bonanza. Apparently, Boisbert, his wife and at least one of their children are on the craft. It also is possible another child is a passenger.

Kill 169 Cong In Delta Area

SAIGON (AP) — An American Army-Navy task force pushing into the guerrilla-infested Mekong Delta was reported today to have killed 169 Viet Cong in a fierce night battle only 19 miles south of Saigon.

Twenty-eight American infantrymen were killed in the battle, 126 soldiers and sailors were wounded, and four American helicopters were shot down, the U.S. Command said.

The battle erupted as the soldiers and Navy river assault forces pushed up a near-flooded paddy area along the Rach Huu River a few hours before dusk Monday. Heavy fighting raged until midnight, then fell off, but new skirmishes were reported today as the men of the U.S. 9th Infantry Division continued the sweep.

The battle was one of several Monday. A Marine landing force in the northern 1st Corps area reported killing 51 Communists in one fight, and U.S. air cavalrymen said they killed 34 Reds in coastal Binh Dinh Province. Thirteen Americans were reported killed in the two actions.

Heavy air strikes against North Vietnam continued Monday with a concentration of raids on Hanoi's rail supply lines.

The delta battle brought a mighty array of American firepower and reinforcements against an estimated 500 entrenched Viet Cong. Artillery and air strikes pounded the muddy battlefield, helicopter gunships swirled down in close support, and Navy Monitors carrying 40mm raked the guerrillas on the fortified river banks. Overhead twin-engine Dragon ships dropped a stream of high-intensity parachute flares to light the scene.

The heaviest U.S. casualties came early in the fight when the Viet Cong opened up on a company of 200 infantrymen from concealed bunkers and fortifications dug into the river bank.

The battlefield was grim and muddy terrain for the American soldiers. The area is laced with canals and is only a few inches

West Says He Acted to 'Tie Up Loose Ends'

BY TOBIE GEERTSEMA

Despite a flurry of last minute public and political hue and cry in reference to the public hearing in Woodstock Town Hall this morning by the Water Resources Commission of New York State Department of Conservation, only a dozen or so interested persons attended.

Among them were Christis J. Larios, of the engineering firm of Brinnier and Larios; Harry Edinger, of the Ulster County Board of Health; Attorney Abram F. Molyneux, appearing for James R. Myers, attorney who was to have represented the Town of Woodstock but could not be present and several representatives of the Woodstock Democratic Club and Town Committee.

The hearing, conducted by David Morey, associate engineer of the State Department of Conservation and Water Resources Commission, had been called to allow those affected by ratification of past acts of the Town of Woodstock in acquiring additional source of water supply an opportunity to speak. As it developed, however, no one had filed a notice of the desire to be heard today in writing with the commission in Albany prior to yesterday's deadline, in accordance with a legal notice which had appeared in The Freeman twice this month.

For this reason, the hearing primarily involved reading of the notice and resolution by Morey, the hearing examiner.

The "past acts" referred to include the development of five new wells in Woodstock in 1964-65 and in extending the boundaries of the water district into an enlargement of the district area to include the Streamside Terrace real estate subdivision.

Just prior to entering the hearing room, Woodstock supervisor William R. West told a Freeman reporter that press and radio coverage on the hearing this week had been "misleading." He said the hearing was under the complete direction of the State and the commission involved had set the date, time and place at its discretion. He also pointed out that he, in behalf of the Town Board, had filed the application for the hearing—to "tie up loose ends" inherited by him when he took office, succeeding former supervisor, Abram F. Molyneux.

West said, "It is not particularly unusual for a town to file for approval after work has been completed, especially in emergency situations and when underground water sources are being tapped." He noted that Molyneux had initiated the work in question, engineering studies and preliminary work had been done by the firm of Brinnier and Larios, and that he (West) had simply "gotten all the paper work together and filed it in the proper form" when he took office.

West's remarks were directed primarily at John Bonilla, Woodstock Democratic Town Chairman, who took to the airwaves Monday to criticize the Town Board for failing to notify local taxpayers of the hearing and "keeping the fact of its being held a secret." Bonilla had charged it had been "technically illegal" to perform the original work without a public hearing at the time the work was proposed.

Bonilla, who was present at today's hearing, urged that the

★ ★ KHS Work Experience Instills Confidence and Responsibility ★ ★

The following is the final article in a four part series on the work experience program of Kingston High Schools business department. Today, Freeman staff writer, Jean F. Dolan, delves into the reactions of students, employers and teachers.

By JEAN F. DOLAN
Last of 4 Articles

"I would have fallen flat on my face." That was one student's reaction to how she would have entered the full time business world without the on-the-job training offered by Kingston High School's work experience program.

Repeatedly students echoed this feeling in assessing their benefits. A working knowledge of office and store situations brings with it poise, ability to deal with the public, co-workers and employers.

From the classroom students come to the work situation with textbooks knowledge of trade skills, and occasionally a know-it-all attitude. Others though well versed in technique may be "scared to death" of actual application. Both of these are subtly molded into the well rounded office worker or retail sales person under the training and occasional stresses of the job.

More Than Typing
Students have discovered that more than know more than typing and shorthand for a secretarial career. They must be well versed in world topics, the weather for tomorrow and what to have for dinner — in other words, the office Girl Friday.

Distributive education students come in the most direct contact with the general public through retail sales posts. The local Distributive Education Club of America, some 200 members strong, is a most dedicated group, bent on learning all they can about merchandising and serving the public.

Not only are they concerned with the school phase of the program, they have an avid concern for employer-employee relations. And to back up this stand, DECA annually sponsors a banquet for employers who have participated in the program during the school year. This year's event was held Sunday night at the Capri 400 Restaurant and was marked by installation of officers.

Serving next year will be Fred Lange, president; Thomas Benicase, vice president; Joseph Rapp, treasurer and Jerry Lynn Bush, secretary.

Employment Offered
DE students learn responsibility, sales techniques and "most valuable" experience. In many cases full time employment is offered after graduation.

In both areas of training, students note money earned gives them an added incentive and sense of responsibility. After the initial spending spree with their first "earned" money, students for the most part settle down to budgets with definite goals in mind. Some use earnings for future education. All students involved in the program must provide their own transportation to the job, so funds must be allotted for this expense. Girls in particular must budget for job wardrobe needs.

Benefits of the program are not all on the side of the student as many employers have attested.

Elmore Yallum of Yallum's clothing store on Wall Street registered his approval of the program. He cited the benefits of employing students oriented to retail sales who can make the transition to practical application with relative ease. He noted a sidelight is the gratification of seeing students develop and go on to better positions and college training.

Bank Employs
Clifford A. Henze, executive vice president of Kingston Savings Bank, said the bank has been employing part time student help for a long time and now employs former students on its regular staff. One part-time student employee is now teller at the walk-up window from 3 to 5 p. m. She is fulfilling her school requirements and assuming added responsibility. Henze feels it is an excellent opportunity to learn "what is going on without pressure" of first job tensions.

An office skills student employed at Tom Reynolds photographic studio has already gone on to bigger and better things. Hired as a part time receptionist, Judith Strubel also did work finishing portraits and assisting in the studio as needed. Most of her skills were acquired during her two-year employment with the studio. She will be staying on after graduation next week.

An added incentive for distributive education students is offered by the Sears Roebuck Foundation in the form of a $50 savings bond presented to an outstanding senior in DE.

This year, Diane Durling, outgoing treasurer of DECA, received the award from Sears and a certificate of recognition from the New York State Superintendent of Distributive Education. Award is given on the basis of scholarship, leadership, citizenship and job performance.

Robert G. March, manager of the local Sears store who made the presentation on behalf of the foundation, said the firm is interested in DE programs and cooperates with the school. He noted the plan helps develop outstanding future executives in the field of retail sales.

Since 1957, the IBM Corporation plant and laboratory in the Town of Ulster has been a participant in the office skills phase. Students are under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Brown, secretarial services manager at IBM.

In commenting on the role of the cooperative students assigned to IBM, Mrs. Brown said, "We have found these students cheerful, cooperative and anxious to succeed at the tasks they've been assigned. They have filled an important need for us in substituting for secretaries or clerical personnel who are absent or on vacations, and many departments have used the services of these young people to help them over periods of extra-heavy work loads."

Teachers and coordinators are proud of student development under the work experience program and share the glow of graduates' successes.

Students in turn remember strict classroom perfectionists with gratitude when they find that nothing less than perfection will do on the job.

Covering Honor Often Problem

By Oswald and James Jacoby
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

There is an old rule that you should cover an honor with an honor. One of the commonest of defensive mistakes is to follow this rule blindly.

Sometimes this is a really tough problem. On other occasions you should know the correct play. Thus, when you just hold two cards in the suit your normal play is to cover. If you don't you may have to play your honor on a low card and gain no benefit from it at all.

Sometimes it even pays to play your honor card when a low card is led. We remember a de-rise with the king. If South held five spades to the king South was doomed to defeat anyway. Charley discarded the possibility that South held seven spades to the queen.

That left one possibility. South might have started with five spades to the king-queen. In that case the ace play might cause South to take a wrong view of the trump situation.

Charley clattered up with the ace of trumps and led a second diamond. South won in his hand, looked at the ceiling, both opponents and the walls, and finally led a low trump and finessed dummy's nine. Charley's ace play had produced a trick for his ten spot.

Wagner Has Open Mind as Javits Foe

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Mayor Robert F. Wagner, a Democrat, says he has an open mind on whether to run against Republican Sen. Jacob K. Javits next year.

Wagner, who was interviewed for the Senate in 1966, was asked on the program if he has not given "any serious thought" to such a race.

He said "a number of people have talked to me about the possibility of running."

Violence Erupts In Georgia City For Third Night

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Crowds of rock-throwing Negroes swarmed into the streets of a shopping center in a Negro neighborhood of Atlanta, Ga., Monday night despite advice from black power advocate Stokely Carmichael to "play it cool."

He spoke to the crowd at a nearby church and said police have "got us surrounded to night, so we'll just wait around and play it cool."

However, the group of about 350, mostly teen-agers, rushed into the shopping center area and began to throw rocks and bottles at store fronts and police cars.

It was the third straight night of violence in the area. Police finally restored order by firing shotguns and pistols into the air. Some climbed to the roofs of the stores to keep better watch on the demonstrators.

At least two persons were injured, including John Casserly, American Broadcasting Co. newsman, and eight were arrested.

Carmichael was not spotted in the demonstration after his speech at the church. He had been arrested Sunday night in a similar outbreak and is free on $30 bond pending a court hearing Thursday.

A group of 250 to 300 Negroes in Montgomery, Ala., also participated in rock and bottle throwing when a march on the state Capitol was halted by police.

City Attorney Ira DeMent estimated 12 were arrested before order was restored. One of those arrested was the Rev. Richard Boone, a Southern Christian Leadership Conference staff worker who had led several marches in the past week. He was charged with interfering with an arrest.

Dutchess Townships Schedule School Budget Vote June 21

School budgets for the Rhinebeck and Red Hook Central Districts will be presented to the voters Wednesday.

Rhinebeck voters will be considering a $1,400,694 budget for the 1967-68 school year, an increase of $168,722 from the present budget.

Citizens of Red Hook will decide on a $1,954,095 budget, a raise of $293,995 over last year.

The public will have the benefit of hearings on both budgets. In Rhinebeck, concerned voters attended a public meeting Monday night in the school auditorium. Red Hook's voters will have a chance to air their views tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the high school.

Rhinebeck's Hike

A good percentage of the Rhinebeck raise is due to the higher cost of quality construction. Teacher's salaries, along with new additions to the staff, will cost the voters $97,578 more than last year. The expenditure will total $777,157.

Another reason for the hike relates to the $103,108 increase in transportation costs.

Board of Education President Robert W. Asher claimed that there are nine new transportation routes this year and said, "We are in the position of a small school turning big. Some of the increases result from that situation."

It was also pointed out that there was no appreciable increase in state aid to the district because of the fact that the district's average true valuation per pupil attendance hour has exceeded the state average.

Red Hook Increase

Reasons given for Red Hook's higher total include increased general costs, normal salary increases, expanded facilities and additional personnel.

The elementary school now has five new classroom teachers, a librarian, and a school nurse teacher; and the high school staff has been expanded by the addition of mathematics, social studies a business teacher along with a guidance counselor and a music teacher.

Instructional costs marking the highest single increase totaled $1,135,840, a $92,000 raise from last year.

Unlike Rhinebeck, Red Hook has had its state aid increased from $999,312 to $1,220,000.

Other Measures

Rhinebeck voters will also consider the candidates for three trustee seats on the Board of Education. Candidates for the two-year term are Mrs. Charles E. Rider and James F. Kelly; the candidates for the five-year term include incumbent Mrs. Donald Bartles and Mrs. Arthur W. Crowley. Five-year incumbent William McCord will run unopposed.

Voters in Red Hook will deliberate on the budget, the election of a Board of Education member to succeed Daniel Griffin — Robert Bowman and Robert Rockefeller are the candidates, construction of a bus storage facility on the Mill Road site, and the renting of classroom space to the Board of Cooperative Educational Services (B.O.C.E.S.) to house the mentally handicapped.

Mayor on Conference:

Rising Costs Concern

Communities are "demanding more rights in charging for services rendered to buildings that are exempt from real estate tax or from citizens who are partially exempt," says Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan recently returned from the New York State Conference of Mayors at Syracuse.

This plus rising costs of all government was a major concern of mayors and other officials at the conference and Mayor Garraghan emphasized local problems which must be solved.

He said he found the conference interesting and among major topics dealt with along with government costs were the Constitutional Convention, city finances, assessments and mandatory legislation imposed on cities, towns and villages by the state legislature.

"With rising costs of government," the mayor emphasized, "cities, towns and villages must have additional sources of revenue since real estate cannot continue to bear the burden. Every person in Ulster County and the City of Kingston knows it except those of the Board of Supervisors and the Common Council."

"I realize that the aldermen and candidates for the county legislature are afraid of losing a vote by being in favor of additional sources of revenue. However, it is about time the property owners tell their legislators that they want some relief in the real estate tax. They must pay or lose their homes and buildings."

"Ulster County is a vacationland and Kingston, the county seat is an important highway terminus and transients must pay for services they demand, as we pay when visiting other states."

"The costs of operating the county and city will continue to rise. The costs of Community College, county highway department, sheriff's office, welfare, district attorney's and family judge's offices continue to rise."

"It is the same for the city police, fire department, public works, recreation, street lighting and sewers. The mandatory costs of city retirement has increased from $156,000 in 1960 to $269,337 in 1967. Social security costs in 1960 were $36,750. In 1967 it amounted to $71,000. The costs of operating the school system is becoming anyone's imagination, and they will continue to rise.

Sees Hike in '68

"In the City of Kingston, our loss in the urban renewal area and the 50 per cent relief to residents over 65 with income of less than $3,000 will increase real estate taxes in 1968 some $1.80 per $1,000 assessment. Further increase in retirement, social security and state hospitalization plan recently adopted by the Common Council will be another $1.50 increase per $1,000."

"In February, 1966, I asked the Board of Supervisors to

Public Hearing Set On Kingston School Budget on Wednesday

Residents within the Kingston School District Consolidated will have an opportunity on Wednesday to participate in a public hearing scheduled for 8 p. m. at the George Washington School auditorium to discuss the proposed 1967-68 school budget.

The tentative budget totals $10,892,062, an increase of $1,677,411 over the 1966-67 budget of $9,214,651. The largest item in the budget to be aired tomorrow is $6,481,408 earmarked for regular day school instructions. That is an increase of $1,028,341 compared to the 1966-67 total of $5,453,067.

An estimated $1,071,000 is included in the tentative budget for debt service principal, an increase of $308,000 over the 1966-67 total of $763,000. An item for employee benefits totals $1,233,972 shows an increase of $126,329 over the previous total of $1,107,643.

The proposed budget breakdown for 1967-68 follows:

Board of Education $65,534; Central administration, $180,664; regular day school instruction, $6,481,408; special schools instruction, $83,535; transportation, $488,085; operation and maintenance of plant, $780,768; undistributed expenditures, service units, $10,330; employee benefits, $1,233,972; insurance, $58,900; unclassified, $56,000; debt service, (principal) $1,071,000; interest $371,690; inter-fund transfer, $10,176.

Copies of the proposed budget will be available at the hearing.

In a statement, the Board of Education points out that the tentative budget is similar to all school budgets throughout the state in that more than 85 per cent of the cost items are either mandated by state or federal law over which the Board has no control, or are contractual obligations incurred over a period of years. Legally mandated items include Teachers Retirement Fund, Social Security, State Textbook Law for private and parochial school children, transportation of certain children to schools inside and outside the district and provisions for handicapped children. Board members serve without pay.

The board statement reads in part, "We wish we could report to you that school costs, in general, have decreased. Unfortunately, this is not the fact. Increasing school enrollments necessitate additions to staff, expansion of the physical plant, and additional supplies, materials and equipment. Goods and services, wherever they are required, cost more each year; the requirements of the schools are no exception to the rule."

"Our total program is constantly being evaluated, and, where needed, expanded or otherwise strengthened and improved. Staff salaries, both professional and non-professional must be maintained at levels which will enable us to continue to attract and to retain the services of well-qualified and competent people. All of these considerations have pronounced effects upon the budget."

"The Board feels that the budget decisions represent 'the best possible balance between high quality and reasonable cost in education.'"

Many weeks of concentrated effort on the part of the Board of Education Business Management Committee and the administration have gone into the proposed budget. Board members feel they have effected every economy which in their considered judgment is consistent with efficient operation and an educational program of the caliber they believe the district wants and needs for its children.

Rocky, Romney

Discuss Strategy

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Michigan Gov. George Romney met here Monday and "discussed ways of getting the Republican (Presidential) nomination for Romney," a Rockefeller aide said.

The two governors conferred for a couple of hours in Rockefeller's Fifth Avenue apartment, the aide said. There was no public announcement by either man.

The Rockefeller aide said he did not know whether they discussed opening a Romney-for-President office here, or whether they talked about campaign funds or a vice presidential candidate.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JUNE 20, 1967

VOTE IN PRIMARY

This is Primary Day. Polls will be open from 12 noon until 9 o'clock tonight.

Contests for the office of County Legislators will take place in Districts 1, 2 and 9 and the City of Kingston. Those receiving the party designation will run for office in the November general election.

Republican contests will be held in District 1, which comprises the Town of Saugerties; District 2, which takes in the Towns of Kingston, Ulster, Marbletown and Hurley; District 9, which includes the Towns of Lloyd, Marlborough, Plattekill and Shawangunk.

In the City of Kingston, the contestants are candidates who seek to run on the Democratic and Liberal tickets.

Paper ballots will be used at the primary and the number of candidates to be voted for will be noted on the ballot.

Eligible voters residing in the City of Kingston who are enrolled in the Democratic Party and those enrolled in the Republican Party in Districts 1, 2 and 9 should go to polls before 9 o'clock tonight and cast their vote.

There has been frequent criticism that voters have little choice in the selection of candidates. Now there is an opportunity in these districts to pick candidates for this important post.

This country's government system is built on a party system and no one can participate fully in the electoral process unless he participates in the primary election. If primaries are to give us a decisive influence in our political system, then the voters should exercise this privilege of citizenship.

BURGLAR TIME

Because summertime is a busy time for burglars, home owners and members of the business community are urged to take extra precautions. Homes vacated for weeks while families are enjoying vacations are irresistible temptations.

There been a rising volume of burglaries in this area lately. Let's not make it easier for burglars by leaving homes and business places unlocked or by alerting them that no one is home through the piling up of newspapers at the door, notes in milk bottles or shaggy lawns.

There probably is no burglar-proof lock, but locked doors will slow up the intruders and discourage them. Anything that acts as a deterrent is good.

It might be well to notify the police when you leave your home for any lengthy period of time. It's part of a policeman's job to check empty homes.

Burglars seldom come uninvited. They usually take the course of least resistance. If your home is buttoned up, they will in all probability visit somebody else.

CREEPING APATHY DECRIED

The young people of this generation are perhaps more alert to the problems of the larger society than any preceding generation has been, but they will probably follow their elders' lead and trail into the apathy and disinterest of the young executive or professional. That was forecast by John W. Gardner, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, at Yeshiva University, New York.

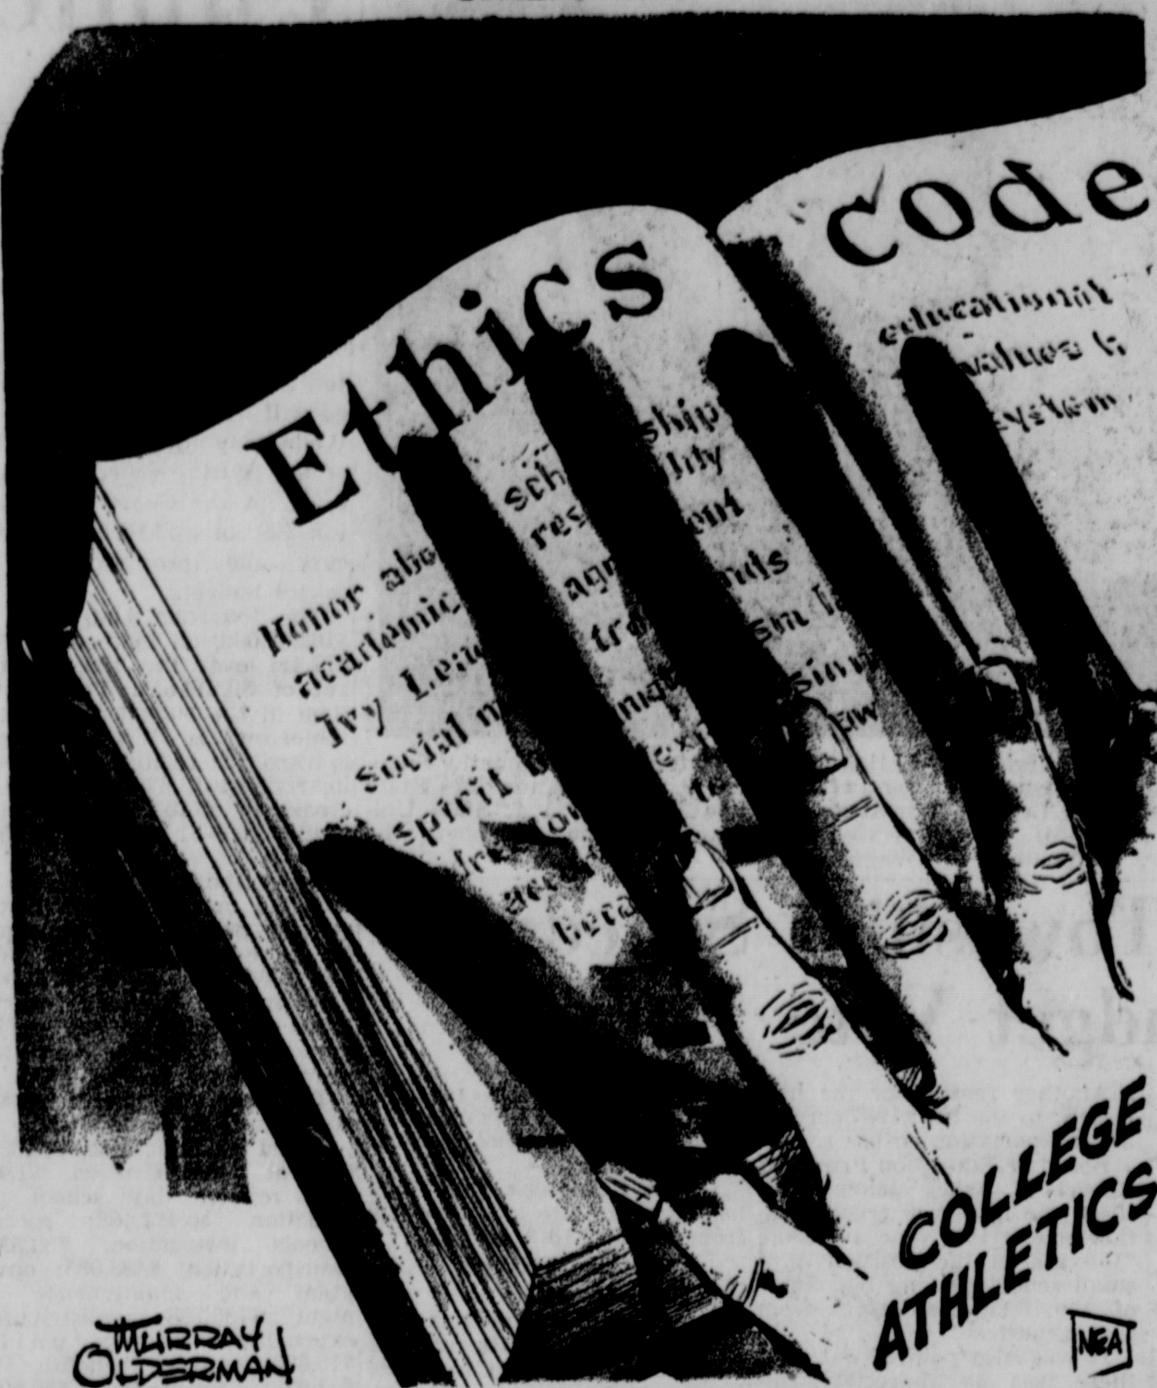

Gardner predicted that a few years of indignant concern for social betterment, characterized by a demand for immediate solution to all the world's problems, will fade as it has in other generations before. They will escape in total peroccupation with one's personal life, complete immersion in a specialized professional field in which the larger community ceases to exist, taking the view that society is so corrupt that nothing can save it, or taking the view that society has fallen into unworthy hands and that they, the virtuous, have no chance.

Listing the ten most pressing problems facing the young generation, Gardner asked them to commit themselves to their solution. They are: building an enduring peace, helping the developing nations, controlling the population, creating equality of opportunity providing an educational system that will insure the maximum fulfillment for each American, giving new life to American cities, protecting the natural environment, improving governmental structure and processes, aiding economic growth and achieving a proper relationship between the individual to society.

Continued popularity of foreign made automobiles has again started Detroit thinking of a smaller, cheaper domestic model. One auto maker is close to a prototype, but no one has yet made a firm commitment. Competition may do what demand for a cheaper car failed to do.

Of Hollywood's growing interest in politics, the late Spencer Tracy scoffed: "Before you ask more actors to get into politics, just remember who shot Lincoln." Tracy wasn't going to join George Murphy and Ronald Reagan in the seats of the mighty, and he had his own good reason for it.

House Is Generally Out of Control

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives is moving nearer the dog days unhappy, poorly led and generally out of control.

Leading Congressmen not given to overstatement have resigned themselves to unpleasant surprises as various segments of the Great Society approach a decision. Officials of the executive branch similarly report that they find it hard to press for their program in an orderly way.

No one issue or one person gets the blame in talks with House members. The mood affects both parties, and seniors are as frustrated as their younger colleagues. Sighed one veteran: "I hope our constituents are happier and see ahead more clearly than we do."

Perhaps everybody in Washington needs a long vacation, but the prospects are slight. Earlier this year Rep. Patsy Mink, a sensible young mother from Hawaii, circulated a petition calling upon the House to adjourn for the month of August. This move to give family life a chance, even in Congress quickly gathered upward of a hundred signatures. But the word got around that things of this kind were not done in the citadel of precedent and no one has pushed for it.

The same fate met a proposal years ago by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith for regular, stated Congressional adjournment. It seemed then to Senator Smith, as it does now to Representative Mink, that prolonged sessions were inevitable and that Congress might benefit from time to think.

Speaker John McCormack, who has made a number of miscalculations about the House temper this year, has sensed this one. He warned the President this week that he would give the House a Fourth of July holiday for a week or ten days and said he hoped Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield would go along. The Senator seemed to agree.

It was simply bad luck for House Democrats when Rep. Carl Albert, second in command to the aging Speaker, had a severe heart attack, but they trusted to luck that Albert could again run his demanding job. This he has not proved able to do. Albert's whip, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, is trapped between the Southern wing and the rest of the party making it difficult for him to function strongly.

Boggs is also a little too close to President Johnson for the comfort of some liberal members. But they are chastened by present circumstances, remembering that the late Speaker Sam Rayburn's favorite, Rep. Wilbur Mills, was vetoed by them as too conservative. Today many of them would settle gladly for Mills in the role of House legislative traffic policeman.

House Republicans complain less about their leaders, though a substantial number of them do not always follow through. The dissident members are the liberals, but they recognize that their hopes of change rest upon the party's ability to nominate and elect a moderate Republican President.

The House resists reorganization, which would help to free them from such dependence on the quality of their leadership. This being so, it is bound to fall into defeatist troughs occasionally, such as the one now plaguing it. (Copyright, 1967, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Jim Bishop: Reporter

There is a smug smile on the apple face of Dr. Herbert Brinberg. He's a profit prophet. He knows what shopping is going to be like 20 years from now, but he sits in an office at 100 Park Avenue, New York, and, as vice president of American Can Company, makes surveys and prognostications that he calls "business planning."

American Can is the biggest. It sells $1,400,000,000 in cans and allied products each year. There are 48,000 employees in 140 plants, ranging from Puerto Rico to Hawaii. Like the others, Continental Can, National and Crown, American makes cans, plastic film containers for shirts, paper cartons, bottles, Dixie Cups and paper plates, napkins and toilet tissue.

Dr. Brinberg's job is to peer into the future and tell American Can what the American housewife will want years from now. In 1939, he made predictions for 1965, and when that year went by, the happy cherub was so close that he scared the hell out of Chairman of the Board Bill May. The doctor foresaw that 80 per cent of Americans would like the easy-open beer can, and came within one billion dollars of forecasting the gross national product.

Brinberg isn't a swami. He has a doctorate in economics from New York University and, with 30 employees in his department, he is a supermarket spy. They know more about the shopping habits of men and women than the people do. A woman, for example, stares at a product for one-fifth of a second. If she isn't sold on it in that time, Brinberg's movie cameras can prove that her eyes flick on to the next product and the next.

Men are slave shoppers. They push a mobile tray up one aisle and down the other according to what their wives have told them to buy. Women, for instance, tend to reach across aisles of bread to select one from the rear of the pile. They think these are the freshest. One man reached back for a loaf as the cameras whirled unseen, held it between his hands, and looked up the aisle in time to see a gorgeous hip-swinging girl coming toward him.

Unconsciously, he squeezed the loaf of bread until it was only two slices thick. As the lady went by, he tried to pull the bread back to normal size. It didn't work. So he glanced guiltily up and down and selected another loaf.

After work one afternoon, Dr. Brinberg stopped into the Oak Room at the Plaza to discuss the future with Ray Fournival, director of public relations for American Can. Brinberg swished his drink around the glass and listened to the talk. Fournival, who has a deep voice and a head like the Capitol, made notes.

In 1987, the doctor said, most products will be freeze-dried. Orange juice will be a number of tablets in a plastic bag, ready to be reconstituted by dropping into a glass of water. Meat will be shrunk to 10 per cent of its normal size. In water, it will return to normal size and redness. Infra-red rays will cook a whole dinner, from soup to vegetables, in two minutes.

A raw frankfurter and roll, placed in a new type of heater, will be thoroughly cooked in 10 seconds. With food at 10 per cent its normal size, storage in freezers will be easier. Onions, beans, peppers and carrots will be so tiny that a shopper will have to read the label before purchase. A week's groceries for the family will fit into one shopping bag.

Milk, now being powdered, will be tastier in pill form. Some edibles will be purchased in their own cooking utensils, which American Can has on the drawing boards now. Vegetables will leave their current plastic bags to be marketed in glass casserole. Beer will remain in cans, because alcohol cannot be shrunk and reconstituted.

At Princeton, N. J., the American Can experimental research station tries "exotic materials" and "way-out" methods of merchandising. For years, Brinberg has been conscious that customers get into supermarkets quickly, but leave slowly. He has invented and devised ways of getting them out quickly, but none of the systems work.

In 20 years, the problem will be solved. The doctor says that shoppers will no longer go to the store. They will dial the store on a home phone. A mechanical voice will say: "You may start your order now." The housewife, with a list before her, will dial 112 for a pound of butter, 646 for milk, 646-2 for two quarts of milk, 688-4 for a four-pound sirloin steak, and so forth.

An electronic sensor will pick up her signals—not in a store but in a warehouse. When she is finished, she will dial 000. The monster will move up and down the warehouse, picking out her choices correctly and depositing them in a basket. When it reaches a loading platform, a human being will place it on a truck and deliver it.

Dr. Brinberg says that we will never be able to dial a new baby. Ray Fournival smiled for the first time. "Waiter," he said, "bring this man another cocktail." Copyright, 1967, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Violence at Home Is Big Problem Facing Us Today

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The most pressing problem that faces the American people is not the friction in the Middle East but the friction inside the United States — the violence in the streets of many cities involving personal injury, bombings and destruction of private property.

More than 90 bills have been introduced in Congress designed to make it a federal crime for persons to travel from state to state for the purpose of fomenting disorders. But up to now proposed legislation has not been acted upon, though within the last few days efforts have been made to get a bill before the House of Representatives for action.

One of the principal reasons for delay is the attitude of the administration and some of the Democratic leaders in Congress. Their feeling is that such legislation might be misused by local authorities to interfere with legitimate protest. This excuse could be applied as a barrier to almost any legislative proposal. The whole judicial system, however, was established to differentiate between abuse of the law and its proper enforcement.

The issue is not as fuzzy as some of the procrastinators in Congress would have the people of the country believe. For the Supreme Court of the United States has plainly stated again and again in many an opinion that it is a crime to incite to violence. In a recent case

Justice Black, speaking for the majority of the high court, rejected the idea that in propagandizing protests people "have a constitutional right to do so whenever and wherever they please."

There are, of course, plenty of places for orderly demonstrations, not only in auditoriums and stadiums but also through properly conducted parades or marches. The key to the current trouble is the tendency of the agitators to harangue crowds, fling insults and accusations, and too often this results in physical clashes and violence of all kinds.

Does "free speech" immunize from punishment a person who incites others to maim or kill or riot? While the laws of all states prohibit disorder, can it be argued that incitement to violence cannot be punished because "free speech" is impaired?

Last year the House of Representatives, by a vote of 389 to 25, approved a measure, sponsored by William C. Cramer, Republican of Florida, which would make it a federal crime to travel between states, or use interstate facilities, with the purpose of inciting riots, violence, arson, bombing, or any other felony under a state or federal law. This was an amendment to a civil rights bill which later died in the Senate. Similar proposals have since been pigeonholed in the House judiciary committee, with the approval, of course, of the administration.

When will Congress act?

The states have been struggling with the problem, and occasionally have to use their national guard to intervene and prevent further violence. But the issue is whether the states and cities should be obliged to wait until a riot breaks out or whether the federal government will step in to investigate the plots and conspiracies when groups meet to select "target" cities for "demonstrations" which inevitably lead to outbursts of violence.

The federal government, through its machinery of investigation, could quickly put its finger on the individuals who are responsible for "demonstrations" that lead to disorder. Many of those who are behind the big "demonstrations" openly predict violence and indicate in advance that they will do things which are plainly provocative. This can be dealt with by federal law but not always by the states and cities. The difficulty is that the states do not know what is being plotted outside their borders where the arrangements are usually made for the provocation of disorders.

Congress, therefore, is the starting point for corrective action. Once a federal law is enacted making it possible to arrest and punish individuals who incite others to violence, it may be anticipated that those who wish to express themselves freely on controversial questions will find ways of doing it in an orderly fashion.

Expansion Planned

Medicare Program Worked Well During First Year

By WILLIAM J. EATON (Chicago Daily News Service)

WASHINGTON — The medicare program is nearly through its first year of helping Americans over 65 pay their hospital doctor bills.

The political diagnosis is that this great society baby is doing about as well as its parents predicted despite a few growing pains.

Organized medicine's resistance to medicare has diminished and few congressmen would risk their political lives by seeking to repeal or reduce medicare benefits. The betting is that the program will be expanded slightly in 1968—an election year.

Social Security Commissioner Robert M. Ball has provided a rundown on medicare accomplishments and setbacks since the program for 19,000,000 (M) older Americans began last July 1.

— Hospitalization. More than 4,000,000 (M) persons have been admitted to hospitals and medicare has paid more than $2.4 billion for their care.

— Doctor bills. A total of 25,000,000 (M) bills for medical services have been submitted and $640,000,000 (M) has been paid under this voluntary insurance program.

— Extended care facilities. This program, which began Jan. 1 for post-hospital convalescents, has helped 200,000 patients at a cost of $60,000,000 (M).

— Home health care. Visiting nurses and therapists have made 2,300,000 (M) house calls worth $13,000,000 (M).

— Participation. More than 6,800 hospitals, accounting for 98 per cent of the nation's hospital beds, are taking part in medicare.

— Backlog. The delay in processing claims under the voluntary insurance program for doctor bills once averaged 8 weeks. It has been reduced to 2.3 weeks, partly because more doctors are helping patients fill out claims correctly.

— "Reasonable Charge" issue. About 43 per cent of the nation's doctors have refused to accept the "Reasonable Charge" for medical services set by Blue Shield or insurance carriers. Insistence on direct billing of patients sometimes causes extreme hardship because they must borrow the money to pay the doctor and wait for reimbursement, Ball said.

— Red tape. The complex procedures for outpatient hospital care, used 3,500,000 (M) times in the first year, will be simplified. So will the procedures for payment of X-ray and laboratory services for patients in hospitals.

In his review, Ball said the hospital benefit program was costing about 5 per cent more than experts predicted, or $120,000,000 (M) above the estimates. But there will be no need to raise payroll taxes for medicare if the earnings base is increased by Congress, he added.

As for the voluntary insurance program, which now has a $3 monthly premium, Ball said it was too early to tell if the cost would be increased in January, 1968.

based on the first year's experience.

It was always expected, he said, that this fee would rise eventually but the cost figures now available do not indicate whether a 1968 increase will be needed or not.

Federal officials are now studying ways to help needy patients whose doctors refuse to accept the "Reasonable" payments and the bills directly to patients.

The AFL-CIO is advocating an amendment to require doctors to accept these fees but Congress is not likely to approve such a plan. Some doctors contend this disrupts the doctor-patient relationship. Advocates say any other method requires poor people to advance funds they do not have.

In some parts of the country, only 20 per cent of the doctors refuse to accept "reasonable" payments. In others—including Illinois, Ohio and Louisiana—more than 60 per cent of the physicians insist on direct billing.

In part, Ball said, this reflects the opposition of state and local medical societies to the "assignment" method of billing.

Ball's first anniversary report said medicare led to a 15 to 20 per cent increase in hospital use by persons over 65.

The program also has allowed many former charity patients to become paying customers and eligible for treatment in the best hospitals. The ending of racial discrimination in many hospitals, he added, also meant that Negroes of all ages are able to enter high quality hospitals for the first time.

"In most respects the program has worked well from the very beginning," Ball said. "The lives of many elderly people have been improved and, in some instances, prolonged."

"It is hard to measure the great improvement in the quality of life for an older person brought about by the removal of a cataract, the repair of a hernia... but it is there, and in a substantial amount."

Convention News

Editor, The Freeman:

H. Clark Bell, constitutional convention delegate from the 38th Senate District, has sent the following letter to Mr. and Mrs. Gebhard Wuest, Box 91 Route 3, Kingston:

Thank you very much for your recent letter inquiring about a news letter to provide information on the operations of the Constitutional Convention and the proposed changes in our Constitution.

This has been a matter of great concern to me and many delegates. The work of the Convention, when it is crystallized into a new Constitution, will control and govern the lives of the people of this state for at least the next generation, and perhaps longer. This is indeed a responsibility and opportunity of gigantic proportions.

If there is to be citizen acceptance of the Constitution, there must be knowledge of what it contains. Following this line of reasoning, I and many other delegates, requested appropriations to send a weekly news letter to constituents, groups, organizations, etc., within our districts. The purpose of publication of this nature are controlled by Mr. Anthony J. Travia, President of the Convention, and he has decided not to provide any such appropriations.

Delegates have not been allowed any individual expenses for such operations and we in the Republican minority have been provided with the bare working minimum requirements to function as delegates. Accordingly, I am most sorry to advise you that it would be impossible to provide you with a news letter. However, I and many other delegates are attempting to somehow fill the information void by putting out press releases for our area papers. Of course, we have no assurance that they will be printed.

My only advice to you and your friends is to make every effort possible to gather as much information as possible through available media—radio, television, newspaper articles.

I have been trying to speak as often as possible on the Convention and spoke at the Town of Marlborough American Legion Hall last week. However, there are only so many hours in each day.

Let me add this thought: If you have some particular areas of concern of interest, do not hesitate to contact me at my Kingston office or Albany office. I will certainly attempt to respond to your inquiries as fully as time will allow.

Yours Truly,

H. Clark Bell

Communism and Slavery

Editor, The Freeman:

Obviously, it is in the best public interest that more of our fellow Americans are gotten to realize that it is still the habit of the Arab Nations to hold on to their old addition to Negro slavery and that it is only amongst them that "the likely young Negro" is regarded as a commodity for purchase and sale.

It is strange, to the least, that the Russians, despite their claims re "modern ways of doing things," should yet accept these slave merchants as their own political bed-fellows.

We Americans, enjoying the blessings of human freedom, are privileged to observe that this is about as far as the commies dare go in admitting that communism is itself a sort of slavery.

Yours truly,

MANUEL DITTENHEIMER.

Post Office Department Problems Get Sympathy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rarely have the men who held the job of postmaster general inspired much enthusiasm for anything but politics, patronage and postal rates.

How suddenly that has changed. Now everyone is interested in the Post Office. And much of the interest is sympathetic rather than antagonistic. "We have detected a definite change in the public's attitude," said a high-ranking postal official. "By speaking frankly about our problems we got the media interested. And people are more sympathetic now."

The problems were, as explained recently by Postmaster General Lawrence O'Brien, present head of the $6.5 billion-a-year enterprise, a monumental clutter of red tape and bad habits, the sediment of an entire century of misuse.

The solution, as proposed by O'Brien, was to sweep the entire problem away at once by giving the department a brand-new structure and more independence so it wouldn't be buffeted by outside forces.

O'Brien, who notes that the department has always "muddled through" somehow, found that muddling was a cross-current to his well-known instinct to move ahead toward goals and accomplishments.

And so the grand attack on muddling was begun. At least 10 prominent Americans have agreed to study antimuddling proposals. This unusual interest in a Post Office proposal was accomplished through a reversal of the old Post Office game. Instead of adding a job, O'Brien proposed to abolish one—his own. He would remove the department from the Cabinet and run it as a business, as a government corporation.

A corporation would permit the Post Office to raise its own funds in the bond markets; it would permit modernization, better use of employee skills, more professional management. It would release the service from niggardly appropriations.

This proposal, "has to be the most extensive ever made in the history of the American postal service," said O'Brien, the 51st man to be postmaster since the job was raised to Cabinet status in 1829.

Acting on the proposal, President Johnson asked 10 prominent Americans to serve on a study committee. Reportedly he received no turn-downs; enthusiasm for the project was catching.

Already the committee has met three times and has scheduled a telephone conference for this week, which is fitting, for Frederick Kappel, former chairman of American Telephone & Telegraph Co., is chairman.

As O'Brien views it, the sooner the panel reports the better, for a breakdown could come at any time in an organization that handles 200 million pieces of mail a day with pigeon holes and other 19th century tools.

Carnival Opens In City Limits

Monday night marked the first time in over 40 years that a carnival has opened within the boundary limits of the City of Kingston.

Coleman Brothers Shows, a national touring company complete with ferris wheels, octopus rides, cotton candy, peanuts, popcorn and dancing girls unlocked its gates 7 p. m. at Dietz Memorial Stadium for a six-day run ending Saturday.

A license to operate the carnival in Kingston was granted by the office of the City Clerk after the company applied for permission May 25.

Granting of such a license is subject to the approval of both the Mayor of Kingston and the Chief of Police, according to a local ordinance which went into effect April 5, 1921. City Clerk Thomas Lyle told The Freeman Monday that the Coleman license application "did in fact gain the approval of the required offices."

Alderman William G. Davis (L-13th Ward), Chairman of the Common Council Committee on Buildings and Supplies, said Monday that the ordinance forbids the operation of any carnival featuring games of chance for commercial purposes or any other exhibitions not in accord with public propriety. He added that the granting of the license "had not been called to my attention."

City Clerk Lyle claims that the show at Dietz Stadium "is more like a bazaar than a carnival" and that "no laws are being broken." It is further subject throughout its six-day run to inspection and regulation by the local police.

The carnival—or bazaar—is the first show of its kind to appear in Kingston since the pre-ordinance days when carnies barked called young and old alike to the carousels, wheels of fortune and painted ladies in the Athletic Field, now the site of the new Post Office building. Carnivals since then have ordinarily appeared outside the city limits, in the Town of Ulster.

Bogus Sticker

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — There seemed to be something strange about the auto safety-inspection-sticker on Ralph Billingsly's car.

Officer G. W. Maughan, who decided to make a closer check of the green windshield sticker, found it wasn't a safety sticker at all, but a block of green-colored trading stamps.

The auto was impounded.

Students, Others Have Stake in New Draft Law

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST
WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft-age students and 19-year-old non-students have a vital stake in new draft legislation Congress hopes to have on President Johnson's desk Wednesday.

If the President signs the measure into law—and he requested it—students seeking a deferment to complete their undergraduate studies no longer would be at the mercy of local draft boards, nor would they be required to stay in the upper half of their classes.

The President could go ahead with his announced plan to shift the emphasis in draft priorities to the 19-year-old group.

The pending bill, a compromise between the Senate and House measures, already has cleared the Senate and was on today's House agenda with passage seen certain.

The bill would continue, with some changes, most provisions of the present draft law expiring June 30. The extension would be for four years. The current law would expire June 30.

The major proposed change would affect students. Any student requesting a deferment to pursue college studies would be entitled to it as a matter of law. He could keep it until he completed his undergraduate studies, reached age 24 or left school, whichever came first.

The only condition would be that the student meet scholastic and other standards of the school he attends—in short, doesn't flunk out or get kicked out. He wouldn't have to be in the upper half of his class.

Sale Not Made Directly to Det.

Sale of five narcotic pills by Anthony Fiordilino, also known as Tony, last December was not made directly to a New York City detective who was involved in the investigation. The sale was made to a "Michael Amato" who had been given money to purchase the drug, and he in turn returned the pills to the detective, who had witnessed the transaction. Fiordilino, who was found guilty of sale and possession, is awaiting sentence on June 28. The transaction took place in New Paltz.

Dale Choice Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — William B. Dale will be nominated by President Johnson for his third 2-year term as United States executive director of the International Monetary Fund, the White House said Monday.

Dale was first named to the post in November 1962. He was reappointed in April 1965.

Dale, 43, a native of Detroit who now lives in Bethesda, Md., entered government service in 1948 as an economist in the Treasury's Office of International Finance.

As U.S. Executive director of the Monetary Fund, Dale receives $25,000.

Yakubovsky In Line to Head Warsaw Forces

MOSCOW (AP) — Marshal Ivan I. Yakubovsky, appears the likely choice to become the next commander of the Warsaw Pact forces of East Europe. Yakubovsky, one of the Soviet Union's rising military leaders, is expected to replace Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, the new Soviet defense minister, in the job.

An official announcement Monday said Yakubovsky, 54, directed maneuvers involving Soviet, Czechoslovak and Hungarian troops June 14-19 in Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Antenna Taken

Someone apparently has acquired a new TV set and lacked an antenna. John E. Schultz of Tillson reported Saturday someone had stolen a Channel Master TV antennae from his premises. It was valued at $50. County Investigator Harold T. Bowers was assigned by Sheriff William B. Martin to investigate.

Hearing Slated Monday on UR Plans Uptown

Proposed changes in Uptown's urban renewal plans will be aired at a public hearing conducted by the Common Council Monday, June 26, in the council chamber, City Hall.

Originally scheduled for May 25, the hearing was postponed in the midst of controversy involving both Downtown and Uptown urban renewal projects.

Changes Uptown, as proposed earlier this year, involve Clinton Avenue properties near the entrance to Kingston Plaza and another in the Converse Street area near the new Telephone Company building. Changes would be made in the presently permitted land use of the sites. It is planned to widen the plaza entrance.

City Clerk Thomas R. Lyle, who announced the hearing, said all persons or organizations desiring to be heard will have opportunity to air their views at the hearing which will start at 7:30 p. m.

The hearing will follow discussion of Uptown plans at the Kirkland Hotel this afternoon by members of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan, other city officials, and Albert Bibby, assistant commissioner of the New York State Division of Housing and Community Development. The Uptown plan has not yet received state approval.

above sea level. Although close to Saigon, there are no roads and the area is virtually isolated. The Viet Cong control it at night by moving in and out of the canals in shallow-draft sampans. The task force of infantrymen and sailors was put aboard the turtle-like armored Monitor boats to gain similar mobility.

The wounds to U.S. sailors were caused by recoilless rifle rounds blasting into the Monitor.

At times the fighting was so close air strikes could not be called in.

In coastal Binh Dinh Province northeast of Saigon, sweeping troops of the 1st Cavalry, Airborne, killed 34 of the enemy in the past 24 hours in a series of running battles through low foothills. Six of the cavalrymen were killed and 16 wounded Monday.

Another five cavalrymen were wounded today when U.S. planes providing tactical support twice dropped their bombs short of their target. The mistakes are being investigated, the Army said.

Arthur J. Burns, one of Kingston's leading civic leaders and businessmen, died today at Kingston Hospital. Mr. Burns had celebrated his 87th birthday May 20.

Born at Bovina Center, Delaware County, son of the late Douglas and Marguerite Doig Burns, as a young man he came to Kingston where he attended Spencer's Business School and during his early days was employed at Levi P. Morton Farms in Rhinecliff. He entered the insurance business in 1902 when he became associated with the Prudential Insurance Co. in this city. In 1907 he resigned his position as assistant superintendent to enter the real estate business. The Shattuck Realty Co. was formed with Schuyler C. Schultz as president, Alva H. Bogart as vice president and Mr. Burns as secretary-treasurer. In 1911 Shattuck Realty Co. acquired the interest of Mr. Bogart. In 1922 Mr. Burns obtained the corporate stock of Shattuck and took over as broker. At the time of his death he was president of the company. Later, Richard F. Riseley and Arthur J. Burns Jr. joined the firm. Mr. Riseley serves as vice-president at the present time. In 1961 Benjamin Sherman joined the firm.

For many years Mr. Burns was a member of the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston, serving since 1922 as a member of the board of directors. He served as president of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce in 1923 and was one of the organizers and original directors of the Kingston Community Hotel Corporation, which built and operated the Gov. Clinton Hotel.

financing of the work already accomplished "should be investigated by the Department of Audit and Control."

Also attending the hearing was John Logan, district representative for Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick. The Congressman, some months ago, called for County Attorney Molyneux's disbarment as a result of his actions in the Luni adoption case—and Logan's presence was attributed by members of the press as traceable to Resnick's interest in Molyneux's past actions as Woodstock town supervisor and any possible emergency undertakings by him without State approval.

The story behind this morning's hearing in Woodstock by the Water Resources Commission had its beginnings in one of the worst droughts of the century—a drought that posed problems for almost every community in Ulster County and the Mid-Hudson Valley during the summer of 1964.

It was a summer when Woodstock and other towns were "drying up" and residents in Ulster and surrounding counties often wondered where the next pan of dishwater would come from, the next laundry tubful and the next Saturday night's bath. Some towns hired rainmakers, others set up public water tanks in central locations, and all burned car washing, lawn sprinkling and garden hoses.

Woodstock's ban lasted from midsummer of 1964 into the late spring of 1965. In that period, local citizens were warned regularly to limit showers and take care in using hoses, faucets and hydrants. During that period, too, ex-supervisor Abraham F. Molyneux (now County Attorney) almost single-handedly and under what he called an "emergency clause," made plans for a new water system; ordered installation and development of five new wells, all coming into one head. This required, among other things, a new pump house, cutting a road to test wells, emergency work on the Kingston City waterline, from which Woodstock drew water for some time, surveying, well drilling and engineering services. When the final bills had been tabulated, the water emergency and the wells had cost the Town of Woodstock more than $68,000.

Today's hearing, which came more than two years after the wells had been acquired and the boundaries of the Woodstock Water District extended, apparently aroused old animosities. Local contracting firms had originally complained that all work involved had been done by only one firm, that of Robert Holsapple, with no other plumber or contractor in the area being given the opportunity of sharing financially in the necessary labor. Present supervisor William R. West (then a Woodstock councilman) noted at the time that he called a "markup" of nearly a dollar on some items in Holsapple's final bill on such materials as valves, bushings, couplings and adapters; said he felt the bill and other bills paid for emergency measures over a period of several months had run into thousands of dollars more than necessary, but took the position that since the bill had been incurred, it should be paid.

Originally, too, Molyneux had been criticized for handling the entire emergency alone without consulting the other members of the Town Board, since the "emergency" was one which had lasted for some seven months. For the record, Molyneux said at the time that he had acted under the orders of Theodore Drachmann, then Commissioner of the Ulster County Board of Health. Other criticisms included the fact that, in most instances, no bids were advertised, although (according to law) expenditures in excess of $1,000 must be put out for sealed bids from competing contractors. Somewhat belatedly, many felt the Town Board appointed their Councilman West and the late Councilman Gottlob Wagner as a committee to go over the rules and regulations of the Woodstock Water District, and to make some policy for having work done in the district.

Until today's hearing, nothing further had been heard in regard to the entire matter.

Charge Theatre Showed Obscene Film to Minors

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A drive-in theater corporation and its manager in suburban Menands are charged with showing obscene material to minors in the form of a film.

The charges were made when Menands and Colonie Police, with the Albany County district attorney's office, raided the Tri-City Twin Drive-In Monday night and confiscated the film.

David J. Azadian, 22, and the Capitol District Twin Drive-In Theater Inc. were charged under a section of the state Penal Code that bars "the showing or exhibition of objectionable material to minors."

Assistant Dist. Atty. Richard Kohn said the arrests "were not a form of censorship but a criminal action against the drive-in" for allowing minors to see "Aroused."

"The theater is on trial," he said, "not the film. We are against the nature of the film as it applies to minors and the motives of the operator."

Kohn said several infants and minors—those under age 16—were found in theater, even though advertisements for the film said "adults only."

He said the arrests came as the result of several complaints to the district attorney's office and police.

Azadian was released in $500 bail, pending court action.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By JIM GILPATRICK

"Actions speak louder than words." Do you think this holds true all the time, or most of the time? We think it does, especially since sentimental or emotional factors cause most of life's decisions. So many people are so pre-occupied with personal thoughts, they are apt to listen only to the words they want to hear, or words they fear to hear. Consequently, words alone, without visible action, and especially words of advice, encouragement, sympathy, caution and the like, often lack the impact to express love, joy, happiness, satisfaction — or their opposites.

Personal action, with or without words, in a person to person communication speaks loud and clear. More importantly, it is understood more clearly than words. Edgar A. Guest expresses the thought beautifully in "Sermons We See" — "The eye's a better pupil and more willing than the ear, fine counsel is confusing, but example's always clear" . . .

Lab Corrects Mariner Path

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — point 43,200 miles from the Mariner 5 pitched, rolled and burned its on-board rocket for 17.66 seconds.

With this delicate maneuver Monday it corrected its path toward Venus and streaked at 6,690 miles-an-hour toward a target centered 1,250 miles off the planet's surface.

The maneuver was commanded by mission control at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory — on earth 980,000 miles away.

Officials said all signals from the 540-pound voyager to Venus indicated it had functioned precisely as ordered.

Launched from Cape Kennedy a week ago today, the probe was aimed initially at a cloud-shrouded planet. This was partly to prevent the craft from crashing onto Venus and contaminating it with early micro-organisms.

The new target area is 2,500 miles long, 800 miles wide.

Officials said a second mid-course maneuver can be commanded if necessary in the 216-million mile curving flight to intercept Venus half way around the sun.

The Soviet Union was silent on the status of its own Venus probe, launched two days before Mariner 5.

The Ge Indians formed a large group of related tribes that once lived in eastern Brazil.

Censure Debate On Dodd Bugged Down in Talk

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate debate on proposed censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd is snarled in a procedural wrangle that Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says "could last all week."

Chances for an early vote on the censure resolution dimmed

Monday as Sen. Russell B. Long, self-appointed defender of Dodd, renewed his demand for a vote first on the charge that the Connecticut Democrat knowingly double-billed the Senate and private groups for travel expenses.

The Senate ethics committee, which recommended Dodd's censure for what it called financial misconduct, remains insistent that the Senate vote first on the separate charge that Dodd converted at least $116,083 in political funds to his personal use.

Long, D-La., said he has no intention of filibustering. But neither did he indicate readiness to yield the floor until his colleagues agree to vote first on the double-billing count.

Long said he expects the Senate to reject the double-billing charge and contend it was unfair to leave it hanging over Dodd while the other charge is debated.

Mansfield met Monday with Dodd, Long, Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen and Chairman John Stennis, D-Miss., of the ethics committee to try to break the impasse.

Debate Delay Dismays Albany Parley Delegates

By GERRY McLAUGHLIN

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Dis-may and irritation were evident today among many delegates to the Constitutional Convention after an effort to launch the convention's first formal debate was frustrated.

Many delegates shook their heads and threw up their hands Monday after Convention President Anthony J. Travia approved a request for a week's postponement of debate on the proposal dealing with court administration.

More than 10 weeks after the delegates convened to revise the state's fundamental law, the convention has yet to debate a proposition.

Republicans asked for the one-week delay on the ground that many delegates had not had sufficient time in which to study the proposal—a measure that could add two more judicial departments to the existing four.

Minority Leader Earl W. Brydges noted that the bill called for the Judiciary Committee last week and conceded that delegates could have learned about its status by keeping in closer touch with convention notices.

Dad Faces Court In Son's Death

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A man who, police said, beat his son about the head when the infant awakened and began to cry, will be sentenced July 14 for second-degree manslaughter.

Ronald Hazeltine, 23, of Rochester, entered a guilty plea to the charge Monday in Monroe County Court before Judge Joseph McDowell. He had been indicted on a charge of first-degree manslaughter.

Police said Hazeltine's 3-month-old son, Wayne, suffered multiple skull fractures in the beating April 5.

Hazeltine, who at first told authorities the child had fallen, was arrested April 8. Wayne was he and his wife's only child.

Graduate, Student Scholarships

A second year student and a graduate of Ulster County Community College have received scholarships from the Catskill Chapter of the American Society of Tool and Manufacturing Engineers.

Theodore C. Stroter, Route 32, New Paltz, who was graduated this June from UOCC, received a scholarship to attend the School of Engineering at New York University.

Meanwhile, John E. Wiejaska, Main Street, High Falls, a mechanical technology student at UOCC, received a society scholarship to complete his second year of studies at the community college starting in September.

The scholarships were given to the students Wednesday night, June 14, by Dr. George B. Erbstein, UOCC president, at a society dinner meeting conducted at the Alpine Restaurant near DeWitt Lake.

President Erbstein said both engineering students had been highly recommended for the scholarships by the College's Division of Engineering and Industrial Technology headed by Professor Walter Hopkins. Mr. Stroter is a 1964 graduate of Kingston High School, while Mr. Wiejaska is a June, 1966 graduate of Rondout Valley Central High School.

In introductory remarks before the presentation of the scholarships, Dr. Erbstein said such scholarships provide a means of encouraging deserving students to continue their education and also serve as an incentive for future UOCC students.

"It is fitting to have these two scholarships spotlight the achievements of two of our deserving engineering students," said Dr. Erbstein. "They have excelled at the College and now they have been recognized for their attainments."

Dr. Erbstein said the College plans to start offering extension courses on both a credit and non-credit basis on and off campus to increase educational opportunities for Ulster County residents. In addition, he suggested that the society members might seek the College's help in providing non-credit courses in preparation for professional engineering licenses.

Radcliffe Girl Protests Dormitory Rules; Advises, Nabs Mate From Harvard

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Last year a Radcliffe girl got 250 replies to her advertisement in the Harvard Crimson saying she wanted to get married for one year to escape dormitory life.

What happened?
"I got married," says Beth Luey.

As a result of the ad?
"Not really, not directly," Mrs. Luey says. "But it did get me out of the dorm."

Beth, 21, and a native of Pittsburgh, Pa., married Michael Luey, 23, of Syosset, N.Y., last January. She was graduated from Radcliffe a few days ago and will do graduate work in Russian studies next semester while her husband finishes his last year at Harvard Law School.

Beth says she and Michael knew each other before she ran the ad, which drew responses from as far as Vietnam and from a person who described himself as "a red-blooded Alaskan bartender."

At the time of the ad, Beth declined public use of her name to avoid calls from "kooks," but agreed to be identified now when interviewed. She declined to give her full maiden name.

"It all died down slowly," Beth says. "But I still have some of the answers. I'm saving them for my grandchildren."

From Kirkland House at Harvard came this response: "A marriage seems a much better solution than a mere roommate. I will be busy with papers until May 3, but I hope you will let me take you to dinner" after that. "P.S. I have furniture."

Three soldiers in Vietnam wrote: "We have decided that as upstanding all-American men first, and soldiers second, it is our honorable duty to all womankind to help alleviate the problem which you are facing. We realize that to offer you shelter in our humble abode would present a small transportation problem, so if you are not adverse to the suggestion, we will have to temporarily maintain separate households until the small matter of a war is straightened out."

Beth's ad was a protest against Radcliffe rules prohibiting students from living off-campus.

Sherry D. Reed Weds Glenford Man

Miss Sherry Darlene Reed, daughter of Mrs. J. W. Tweedie, Margaretville, and the late C. Lester Reed, became the bride of George James Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bush, Glenford, Saturday, June 3 at 2 p. m. The Rev. Arthur Kopp, First Presbyterian Church, officiated. Organist was Miss Carolyn Washburn, Margaretville. Baskets of pink and white gladioli decorated the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her stepfather, J. W. Tweedie, wore a floor-length white satin gown, empire waistline, styled with a rounded, sequined neckline and a flowing train of satin, lace and sequins. Her veil was fashioned to a crown of tiny pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of white snapdragons, carnations and baby's breath.

Miss Carol Rosa, Arkville, maid of honor, wore a pink street-length chiffon-over-satin gown, styled with an empire waistline. She carried a pink colonial bouquet.

Attendants were Mrs. Lucinda Bush, Bearsville, and Miss Pamela Mattice, Highland, who wore blue street-length satin gowns with blue lace overdress, empire waistlines and carried blue colonial bouquets.

Louis Bush, Bearsville, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. David Bush and Gale Simmons, both of Kingston, were ushers.

After the wedding a reception was given by Mr. and Mrs. Tweedie at the home of the bride.

No Progress In Jova Talks

Negotiations between management of the Jova Manufacturing Co., Kingston and the Jova Brick Works, Roseton, and officials of Teamsters Local 445 and Operating Engineers Local 825, remained at an impasse after a meeting here Monday.

Federal Mediator Commissioner Albert Palmer attended the session, after which Anthony Alecca, president of Teamsters Local, reported "no progress" in the dispute which resulted in shutting down both plants at midnight, Thursday, June 15.

Picket lines have been set up at both plants, Alecca said. He charged that the company declined to produce documentary proof of claimed losses in business.

The contract at the Roseton plant expired in June, 1966, and the Kingston plant contract with the union expired last Thursday.

Alecca said the union is seeking improvement in the welfare program and the taking over by the company of the insurance program; a pension plan and a general wage increase of 10 cents an hour. Jova employs between 150 and 165 workers.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market edged higher on balance early Tuesday in quite active trading.

It was an irregular advance with gains and losses running from fractions to 1 or 2 points.

Rails, which have been strong in recent sessions, showed a ragged picture following a published report that major railroads are projecting a gloomy picture of 1967 earnings in an attempt to bolster their case for a freight rate increase.

New York Central dropped nearly 2 points, Southern Railway a fraction and Pennsylvania Railroad eased.

On the brighter side, Xerox and Control Data rose more than 2 each. Gains of a point or so were made by U.S. Smelting, Merck, IBM, Raytheon and SCM.

Opening blocks included: Martin Marietta up 1/4 at 23 1/2 on 31,000 shares; Woolworth up 1/4 at 26 on 7,000; Pan American World Airways, off 1/4 at 32 1/2 on 4,400 shares; and General Electric, off 1/4 at 88 1/2 on 3,500.

A kind of watch-and-wait attitude still prevailed on Wall Street. Analysts noted that uncertainty still existed in regard to U.N. discussions about the Middle East.

On Monday, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose 2 to 32.0.

U.S. Uncertain Of Paying for Ship Damages

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman says it is an open question whether the United States will pay damages for an attack June 2 on the Soviet ship Turkistan while the ship was tied up at the port of Cam Pha, North Vietnam.

The United States disclosed Sunday that American planes may have strafed the ship while on a mission to attack North Vietnamese positions in the area. Just after the attack, the United States discounted Soviet claims that American planes were involved, but it was explained that new military reports indicate the Soviet claim could be justified.

Robert J. McClosky, State Department press officer, said Monday the subject of paying damages hasn't come up.

Install Fence In UR Areas

Workmen of the William M. Young Co. Inc., of Newark, N.J., demolition contractor in the Broadway East urban renewal area, today started installing four-foot-high chain-link fencing along sidewalk areas.

Work began this morning on Newkirk Avenue. Eric Hemphill, Kingston Urban Renewal Agency executive director, said demolition specifications required the fencing of sidewalk areas which are left exposed or in dangerous condition due to the demolition of a building.

Some 330 lineal feet of fencing will be installed and paid for by the demolition contractor.

The work is expected to be completed in about a week.

Repair of sidewalks in the area, which was in progress last week, nears completion. It was delayed because of recent rains.

Welfare Proposals

LIBERTY, N.Y. (AP) — Members of the State Public Welfare Association want the new or revised state constitution to relieve local governments of all Medicaid costs.

They adopted a resolution at their meeting here Monday urging delegates to the Constitutional Convention to include in the new document a requirement that the state and Federal governments must underwrite all Medicaid costs.

The association also asked the convention delegates for a prohibition against passage of any legislation requiring local expenditures unless complete reimbursement is made by the state or Federal governments.

The association elected Sassen Hage, welfare commissioner of Montgomery County, as president.

Leave for Home

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP) — The last contingent of Vietnamese paratroopers, wounded in their homeland, were flown back to Vietnam today.

The 12 men went aboard a plane at Stewart Air Force Base accompanied by a Vietnamese doctor, two medical corpsmen and two interpreters.

The dozen men were among 57 Vietnamese fighting men, all paratroopers, brought to the Castle Point Veterans Administration Hospital in November 1965.

Pentagon Cuts Backlog of Untrained Men

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says it has sharply reduced the number of Army National Guardsmen and Reservists who have not received active duty training, a problem Congress had expressed concern about.

As of May 31 there were 19,400 untrained men in the Guard and Reserves, but now there are 5,300 and most of them will begin training in July, the Pentagon said.

The problem was worse a year ago when 133,000 men were awaiting training.

The Defense Department said the backlog developed because Army training camps were filled with draftees and recruits undergoing training for Vietnam and for service elsewhere. This situation has eased enough to eliminate the backlog, the Pentagon explained.

No Champagne

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 10th child of Sen. and Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy was christened Sunday but for one of the Kennedy children the ceremony was something of a disappointment.

Douglas Harriman Kennedy was christened at St. Luke's Roman Catholic church in suburban McLean, Va. Standing by were his honorary godfathers, Ambassador at Large Averell Harriman and C. Douglas Dillon, former Treasury secretary.

The other Kennedy children were there too — just as they were last month in Norfolk, Va., when the aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy was christened. Apparently having a fixed idea of what christenings are all about, Christopher Kennedy, 4, reportedly asked his mother during the church christening: "Aren't we going to break a bottle of champagne over the baby's head?"

Wheeler-Dealer

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP) — James Green, 28, of East St. Louis, Ill., was arrested Monday as he walked along a street pushing a wheelbarrow.

In the wheelbarrow, police said, was an unopened safe, a money order machine and 32 postage stamps. Green was charged with the burglary of an East St. Louis pharmacy.

POLIO VACCINE DEVELOPER MARRIES AGAIN — Dr. Albert Sabin, widowed developer of oral live virus polio vaccine, has married the former Mrs. Jane Warner in a ceremony in his hospital room at Holmes Hospital in Cincinnati. Dr. Sabin, 60, is hospitalized with an ankle injury he suffered when his family's pet dog bit him. He was seated in a wheelchair during the ceremony performed by Rabbi Murray Blackman of the Rockdale Avenue Temple. This picture, taken before the wedding, shows Dr. Sabin and his new wife. Pay Higher Multiple For Faster Growth

Q) "I am 15 years old and planning to go to college. Two years ago I bought Long Island Lighting, International Telephone and Telegraph, and Witco Chemical. These stocks were bought for growth and I wonder if I should switch any of them for my purpose." T.M.

A) It is a pleasure to encounter a young man like yourself, who is making sensible plans for his future. You have shown sound judgment and you hold three good stocks. International Telephone seems wholly satisfactory for your purpose. Long Island Lighting is one of the best of the electric and gas utilities serving a rapidly growing area. Stocks in this group have done very little in recent years because their appeal mostly to conservative institutional and individual investors who have not been a part of the 1962-1967 market.

Long Island Lighting could resist any future market decline and should do well for you on a long-term basis. I would hold it as a backlog for your list. Witco produces chemicals and petroleum products and seems well managed. There has been growth here but the price-earnings ratio is relatively low and has been moving down in recent years. This trend indicates declining favor with investors, and at your age I would prefer faster growth and be willing to pay a higher multiple for it. I advise you to switch Witco into Becton, Dickinson.

Q) "We have $80,000 in life insurance stocks which have dwindled considerably in value to $40,000. Should we sell out and diversify?" P.S.

A) I believe you should plan to diversify at some later date. Life shares are strictly long-term holdings and as recent action shows they are subject to sharp intermediate price declines. They have had a fine record as a group and if your stocks are of good quality, I believe you should wait patiently for recovery.

Mr. Spear cannot answer all mail personally but will answer resist any future market decline and should do well for you on a long-term basis. I would hold it as a backlog for your list.

OAS to Probe Invasion Charge Of Venezuela

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Organization of American States will look into a charge that Cuba landed an invasion force in Venezuela May 8.

At Venezuela's request, the OAS voted unanimously for the probe. Venezuela's OAS ambassador, Pedro Paris Montesinos, said there was a "real and serious danger" menacing all Latin-American countries.

Mexico, the only member of the 21-nation council which has diplomatic relations with Fidel Castro's regime, joined in voting for the inquiry but made clear it is not committed to approving or honoring any actions based on it.

Prods Delegates

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Former Gov. Dennis J. Roberts, chairman of the state constitutional convention, has urged delegates to be ready for a lengthy session next Monday so that efforts to speed the 30-month-old convention to an end can be advanced.

Roberts made his comments following a 2 1/2-hour convention session at the state house Monday, during which delegates gave final approval to three more articles for inclusion in the new constitution.

Just ten articles now remain to be approved for the third and last time.

Woman Killed

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Three persons were injured, one fatally, when their automobile skidded down a Wyoming County hill Monday and overturned several times.

Mrs. Joseph Tower, 26, of Buffalo, died in Mercy Hospital here, several hours after the accident along Route 354 near Bernington. Her 27-year-old husband was treated at the hospital for multiple cuts and their son James 2, was admitted in fair condition with head and leg injuries.

Bridge Results

The Glenier Bridge Club held a fractional point game at the Elks Club and played 28 boards in a Howell movement.

There was a tie for first and second place by Mrs. James Cavin of Kingston and Robert Shea of Poughkeepsie and Miss Dorothy Maroon and Dr. Habbie Maroon of Kingston.

Third place went to Mrs. Harry McNamara of Hurley and Mrs. John Olivet of Kingston.

Detroit Police Force Depleted By Wage Dispute

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit's police force was depleted by nearly one-third of its patrolmen today in a dispute over demands for higher pay.

With more than 800 patrolmen off work, city officials headed into court to seek a permanent injunction barring a strike. A temporary restraining order was issued last week.

Al Leggat, city director of labor relations, said he had been assured that some 400 Michigan National Guardsmen could be called to duty on four hours notice if they are needed to help out.

Aid also has been offered by the Michigan State Police, Leggat said.

The dispute centers around a demand by the Detroit Police Officers Association — DPOA — that patrolmen's top salaries be raised from the present $8,335 annually to $10,000. City officials insist there is no money available for such a raise.

The ranks of patrolmen were depleted by about 200 suspended for neglect of duty and several hundred others who called in sick, as well as nearly 100 on the disabled list or on emergency leave with departmental approval.

The "sick call" epidemic began last Thursday after several traffic bureau officers who allegedly had participated in a ticket writing slowdown were assigned to pounding a beat.

It appeared to have tapered off Sunday after the restraining order was issued, but flared anew Monday.

Corporation Counsel Robert Reese warned that the situation was nearly out of hand, and was deteriorating badly.

Checking New Clues In Granville Case

GRANVILLE, N. Y. (AP) — Police checked new clues today in the aftermath of the discovery of the body of Donna Lee Wilkins, 17, whose body was taken from a grave in a rural cemetery near here April 20.

Miss Wilkins' nude body was found Sunday near Poultnery, Vt., about 10 miles northeast of this small community.

Fingerprints and dental records Monday confirmed that the body was that of Miss Wilkins, who died of spinal meningitis in May 1966, at the Craig Colony and Hospital in Sonoma. She had been a patient in the hospital, a facility for the mentally retarded, since 1959.

Police Chief Charles Darius of Granville said the discovery of the body had produced fresh clues. He added, however, that no arrests were expected immediately. The girl's right leg, he said, had been hacked off at the thigh.

The body was to be returned here and reinterred in the same grave from which it had been taken, police said.

Hampton Benefit Called Success

The Lionel Hampton benefit show sponsored by the Kingston Jaycees on Friday, June 16 was a huge success according to R. K. Rydstrom, chairman of the show.

The Jaycees will use the proceeds from the show for such projects as the children's Christmas shopping tour, the Easter egg hunt, the Teen-Age Road-e-o and many sports activities.

Rydstrom expressed his gratitude to the local newspapers and radio stations for the fine publicity they afforded the show. He also extended his thanks to all of the patrons and the general public who made the success possible.

Three Arrested On Bench Warrant

Three local young men indicted by the Grand Jury for alleged robbery and assault on a downtown man on May 23, were arrested on a bench warrant and remanded to jail pending appearance in County Court to answer to the charge.

Alvin Collins, Frank Landers and Richard Letang are charged with second degree robbery, second degree assault and petit larceny in an indictment which charges them with the mugging of Milton Cole, owner of Manos Market, lower Broadway, on the night of May 23. It is alleged $48 was taken. The sealed indictment was returned by the Grand Jury in a partial report June 16, and County Judge Raymond J. Mino signed a bench warrant for the arrests, on request of Assistant District Attorney Francis Vogt.

Gypsies were once found only in India but, about 1300, they began to wander westward and finally reached Europe.

Relief to Be Welfare Worker

BY BERNIE GOULD
NEW YORK (AP) — It took Gladys Moody more than 20 years—off and on—to get through college, part of the time while receiving welfare payments. Today, with a sociology degree, Mrs. Moody starts work as a hospital caseworker, helping others with problems.

"I'm in a better position to help them," said the 38-year-old divorcee and mother of two. "I can understand what they feel."

She knows first hand, she said in an interview, the "decided stigma attached to being on welfare."

She said that when her youngest, Eugenie, was born 2½ years ago, she was separated and applying for a divorce. She said she didn't know her husband's whereabouts, and had given up her job and schooling to take care of the baby.

She had a hard choice to make. She could either put Eugenie up for adoption, as friends suggested, and go back to work. Or she could go on welfare, try to finish school while a day care mother looked after the baby, and hope ultimately to land a job enabling her to support her family.

"Relief was a horrible word in my family," said the daughter of a tailor. "But I had no choice. I couldn't give up the baby."

Welfare workers, she said, told her they had never before subsidized anyone through college, that hers would be a test case in New York State.

Trees Taken

Thelma Clearwater of Box 100, Hurley, reported Saturday to the sheriff's office that some time between last November and now approximately 900 to 1,000 three year old Norwegian spruce trees had been stolen. The trees were valued at $900. An investigation is underway by County Investigator Harold T. Bowers. The premises are located at the junction of old and new Route 209.

Desecration Law Enactment Sure Before July 4

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation making it a federal crime to desecrate the American flag may be on its way to President Johnson before Congress quits next week for the 4th of July recess.

The House takes up the legislation today, with only a handful of votes expected against it, while plans in the Senate are to bring it to the floor after completion of debate on censure of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

Both sides plan to use visual aids in the House. Supporters of the legislation say they will show billboard-size photographs of a recent flag-burning incident in New York's Central Park and of the historic flag-raising by Marines on Iwo Jima during World War II.

Opponents plan to display flag-decorated items such as beach towels, pillows and earrings in order to find out if a provision applying the bill to all face, defile, burn or trample on representations of the flag would make it illegal too, for example, to lean against a pillow with a flag on it.

The major effort to amend the bill is expected to be made by its supporters from both parties who want to spell out more clearly that the bill is aimed only at those who mutilate, deprecate, defile, burn or trample on the flag with malicious intent.

Summer Water Situation Appears Bright in Area

By FRED SNYDER

The hot, dry, lazy afternoon has generally been the hallmark of summertime in the Hudson Valley, a time when and swimming in backyard pools become popular pastimes and water tanks, wells and reservoirs in turn shrink to dangerously low levels.

Anticipating possible drought conditions which have plagued the area in recent summers, water officials of several communities throughout Ulster and northern Dutchess Counties are issuing restrictions on the use of water for private purposes to preserve the current supplies.

An all-day ban on lawn sprinkling is effective this week in the Town of Ulster. Towards the middle of the summer further restrictions will be placed on car washing and swimming pools, according to water superintendent Abram Winchell. The two storage towers which supply the area reached critical levels at the end of May, and although last week's rains improved the situation, Winchell says the current water volume "is still only adequate."

Highland Restricted

Another ban on lawn sprinkling begins today in Highland from 7 to 9 p. m. daily. Superintendent Thomas Rizzo of the Highland Reservoir System explains that laborers have been pumping the Hudson River for 16 hours a day since the beginning of June as compared with a normal operating time of five hours. Three of the system's tanks are being saved for "emergency purposes." A fourth tank ordinarily in use went dry June 1.

Residents of Rosendale, whose water tanks have been running at 50 per cent capacity for the past two weeks urged to cut down on unnecessary use of water as much as possible. Although no specific restrictions are in effect, Commissioner Robert Sheehan has "strongly urged" a sharp decrease in lawn sprinkling and car washing, "until more prohibitive measures become necessary."

Although the storage tank which supplies the village of Red Hook in Dutchess County has been full all year long, officials in that community last week encouraged residents "to use common sense" in their lawn sprinkling activities.

Meanwhile, authorities in Rhinebeck and Rhinecliff say there will probably be restrictions on watering lawns and washing cars in those villages beginning "sometime in July," as was the case there last summer.

Elsewhere in Ulster County, the recent series of downpours has kept the various water supplies in good to excellent condition, a comparatively unique situation for this time of the year.

Cooper Lake Full

The Cooper Lake Reservoir which supplies the City of Kingston has been full since November, 1966. Water Superintendent Edmund T. Cloonan foresees no need for any kind of restrictions throughout the summer. "Usually, if the reservoir is full by June 15 of any year, we can get through the summer months very nicely," Cloonan says.

Cumulative rainfall in the Cooper Lake watershed for the period Jan. 1 to May 31 this year was 14.33 inches, only 20 per cent short of the average 40-year count of 18.16 inches, Cloonan adds. Both figures compare with the less than 12 inches which fell during the same period in 1965, the last time Kingston was considered a drought area and the last time water bans were placed on local residents.

Last weekend a total of 2.06 inches fell into the watershed, bringing the cumulative count for the month of June alone up to 3.81 inches. Reservoir officials claim that "this is more than we usually get up here for the whole month."

The Blue Mountain Reservoir servicing Saugerties, Glasco and vicinity has been full to overflowing since April. Au-

TIPTOE TO SAFETY — An Albuquerque, N.M., fireman goes to the tips of his toes to avoid falling in flooded Albuquerque street. Joe Ferris, right, provided board to firemen's pickup truck which mired in front of the Ferris home. The city received 1.35 inches of rain in a 1½-hour span. (AP WIREPHOTO) thorities there foresee no need for any restrictions during the summer. This time last year, The Village of New Paltz is also free of water restrictions. Ashokan Reservoir, which supplies both the village and New York City, has been overflowing since the early part of the month. In Woodstock, water superintendent William Harter states that a constant full level has been maintained in his district's wells and tanks since September. While restrictions were enforced last August on lawn sprinkling in Woodstock and Bearsville, Harter says "no necessity for similar action is foreseeable this summer." And Supervisor Charles Relyea of the Town of Hurley reports that water conditions are good for all private purposes in Old Hurley, Rolling Meadows and Elmendorf Heights. He has warned, however, there "may be a problem" in West Hurley before the middle of July.

In other areas of Ulster County water supplies have remained remarkably secure for decades. Water officials in the Towns of Shandaken and Marbletown, for instance, claim they have "never had any problems" with individual water consumption during the summer months. And in Ellenville, authorities at the Maratanza Reservoir had to advertise in area newspapers throughout the 1965 drought season that it was all right for residents to use as much water as they wanted. This year

JAYCEE OFFICERS—Kingston Jaycees of recently conducted installation ceremonies for its officers for the 1967-68 club year. the reservoir has been full to capacity since May 1. The unexpected rainfalls have likewise proved beneficial to the agricultural situation in Ulster County. Robert D.

Guzewich, associate cooperative agent for the county's extension service said Monday that "there have been enough downpours in recent weeks to insure a good crop of alfalfa and strawberries for the rest of the summer. Corn, wheat, grain and fruits have also been growing well, and barring disaster we definitely will not run into the same problem of insufficient water we've had for the past two or three years."

The generally favorable water conditions in the Ulster-northern Dutchess areas appear in marked contrast to the overall statewide situation. Specific bans on use of water for lawn sprinkling, car washing, swimming pools, and even air conditioners have already been placed on residents in Jamestown, Erie County, Albany, Coltnie, Schenectady, Guilderland and East Greenbush, to name only a few districts. Restrictions have also been placed on commercial car washing establishments in some communities.

Democrats Gain

WHITE PLAINS N.Y. (AP) — Registrations in Westchester County in the past 15 years grew 20 per cent for Republicans and 117 per cent for Democrats. During that time population of the suburban county increased 36 per cent.

A Natural for Kickers: Poughkeepsie B and W

The German-American Football Association has come up with a natural rival for the Kingston Sport Club Kickers in the 1967-68 League Division season.

Application of the Poughkeepsie Blues and Whites for a franchise in the League Division of the GAFA was approved as part of the 44th annual convention held at Oehler's Mountain Lodge.

Acceptance of Poughkeepsie was enthusiastically hailed by Sport Club officials and Manager Bob Graves.

"It looks like the beginning of our first natural rivalry in the league," said Graves. His sentiments were echoed by KSC president Gus Horn and publicity man, Kurt Schoch.

"Poughkeepsie has a fine team," Graves went on, "and should prove a solid addition to the league."

Stamford United was granted a one year leave of absence leaving the League Division with 11 teams. In addition to Kingston and Poughkeepsie, there will be Bridgeport, 1966-67 champions; Lithuanian, Bavarian, Yonkers, American Czechs, White Plains, Spring Valley, Kollman and Schwaben. The GAFA also operates the Major and Premier Division with a total membership of 32 teams.

Association delegates elected Harry Saunders of the New York Hotas as new president to succeed John Stox, who becomes Junior Past President under GAFA by-laws. Saunders is a colorful German-born ex-British Army officer.

Other officers are: Harry Buettner, first vice president; Hans Chalton, second vice president; Dieter Steubert, third vice president; Fritz Marth, secretary; Herbert Halpern, treasurer; Wolfgang E.

Besser, games chairman; Guenter Metsch, recording secretary; Henry Uhlfelder, financial secretary; Erich Werner, registrar.

Delegates also selected Elizabeth N. J., as the site for the 1968 convention after two years at Oehler's. The convention dinner was held Saturday night.

In the annual convention exhibition game, the Sport Club Kickers shut out Hoboken Football Club, oldest soccer group in the country, 5-0. Reiner Schwebel, Lee Roberts and Winnie Sodermann were outstanding for the locals who retained the Schaefer Trophy. A preliminary game was played between juniors team from Saugerties and Port Ewen.

In the limited weekend schedule in the G-A, American Czechs defeated Lithuanian, 6-1, in the League Division and Hoboken topped Haledon, 4-2, in the Premier.

Matson Seeks Shot Record In Bakersfield Track Meet

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Randy Matson, Texas A&M's mighty weightman, will concentrate on the shot at the National AAU meet in Bakersfield, Calif., Friday, leaving the discus for later, if at all.

Matson wants to pitch the 16-pound ball 70 feet so there'll be no question about it. He never has done it outside the state and he fears folks will start calling him a homer or something.

Randy set the world's record of 70 feet, 7 1/2 inches in 1965 at College Station. And he bettered that with a heave of 71 feet, 5 1/2 inches — also at College Station. He has thrown the shot 70 feet or better seven times but all of those pitches were in Texas.

Will Skip Discus
So Matson will pass up the discus so he can have a better chance of hitting 70 feet in the AAU.

He explains that the two events do not work together very well and if he tries both he may find they will be hampering each other.

"There's a different set of exercises for each," he explained. "If you don't watch you'll be using the technique of one for the other."

Did this mean Matson was abandoning the discus, in which he has thrown 213 feet, 9 1/2 inches?

Matson hesitates to say he'll give it up; in fact, he expects to throw the discus some more this year. But he intimates he won't be working with it next year when he starts training for the Olympics.

"It may develop that I can't do both because they would be cutting me down so I might fail to win either in the Olympics," he declared.

"Well, what I want is the gold medal for the shot put in the Olympics and I'm not going to let anything interfere with that aim."

Matson won the shot and discus at the NCAA last year, throwing 67-9 1/2 in the former and 190-4 in the latter.

He said he might have done better in the shot had it not been so cold, something he doesn't anticipate at Bakersfield.

He has made 69 feet in Los Angeles and Albuquerque for his best outside the state.

Rudy Goff, long hitting Taconic Golf Club (Williamstown, Mass.) and Ed Bosse of Colonie Country Club will represent the Northeastern New York PGA at the PGA National Championship in Denver, Colorado July 20-23.

Goff fired a 5-over-par 74-71-145 to lead the National PGA sectional qualifying round at Wolfert's Roost Monday. Bosse was only one stroke back to grab the second spot.

Ralph Montoya of Little Falls was next at 148 to gain the alternate berth. None of the three area pros — Alex Gerlak, Twaalfskill; Jim Hutchins, Woodstock, and Ian (Scotty) Robertson of Wiltyck — competed in the qualifying round.

In addition to Goff and Bosse, the Northeastern PGA has two members who automatically qualify for the championship as former PGA champions. They are Tom Cravay of the Saratoga Spa course and Hall of Famer Gene Sarazen of Germantown, current district pro champion.

Gets Fast Start

Goff had a 38-36 for a 74 morning round and came back in the afternoon with 71 on 34-37. Goff got off to fast starts each time, bagging birdie-3's on the par-4 first hole both times around. He got one with a 15-foot putt and the other with an 18-footer.

In the afternoon round, the Taconic pro bagged birdies at the par-five 2nd with a 20-foot putt and the par-four 17th with another long putt.

Bosse posted 39-36-75 in the morning and 36-34-71 after lunch. The Colonie shot-maker showed two birdies on his afternoon card, at the par-4 third and par-4 thirteenth, both on long putts.

Montoya ran into trouble in the morning when he went eight over par with a 78 on 38-40, but settled down to fine golf in the afternoon when he had a regulation 35-35-70, lowest score of the day.

His afternoon round showed two birdies, two bogeys and five pars. He birdied the par-four 6th with a 20-footer, after bogeying the 5th and birdied the par-four 18th after going one over on the 17th.

Ken Yount of Hyde Park Gold Club, Niagara Falls, and Bobby Hill of Craig Club, Brockport, gained the Western section berths in the match near Buffalo.

Ernest Kroll of Cooperstown, Ernest Fortner of Ogdensburg and Stan Mack of Canton claimed the three Central spots in rounds at Ithaca.

Kroll turned in a 73-73-146 for two rounds on Cornell University's par-72, 6,800-yard layout. Fortner, 74-76, and Mack, 77-73, each had a 150. Augie Nordone of Syracuse edged into an alternate spot, 79-74-153.

Hill fired a 70-73-143 over the par 72 Brookfield Country Club Course in Buffalo's suburban Clarence. Yount sunk a 20-foot putt for a par on the first extra hole after he and Jack Lumpkin had deadlocked at 145.

Yount had rounds of 73 and 74. Lumpkin turned in a 71 and 74. He was named first alternate.

Palmer Sent To Rochester

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Palmer, who led Baltimore with 15 victories last season and pitched a shutout as the Orioles swept the World Series was optioned to Rochester of the International League today on 24-hour recall.

"We hope Palmer will make a couple of starts for Rochester, and get in sufficient work to get back in shape," said Harry Dalton, Baltimore's director of player personnel.

Palmer, a 21-year-old right-hander, has been bothered with recurring pain in his right shoulder dating back to last August. He had made only two starts for the Orioles since hurling a one-hitter on May 12 to beat New York.

Prior to Monday's two-night doubleheader with Minnesota, Palmer threw for about 25 minutes and experienced no pain. The decision was immediately made to send him out so he could pitch.

"If Jim still had pain, we probably would have placed him on the disabled list," Dalton said. "We didn't make this move earlier because we kept hoping he would come around."

Palmer was told of his demotion by Dalton, Manager Hank Bauer and pitching coach Harry Brecheen behind closed doors. He took the news calmly.

"I'll probably throw some more on Thursday," Palmer said. "I'm anxious to see how my arm feels then."

"I wasn't anxious to go to Rochester, but the way things are going up here, I can't disagree with the decision."

Palmer's trouble has been diagnosed as a pinched tendon, and he has been treated with heat, cortisone shots and other medication.

Bahnsen Routed As Chiefs Bow
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There are, of course, many and complex reasons for the plight of last-place Syracuse in International League baseball, but the one that sticks out like a sore thumb is pitcher Stan Bahnsen's inconsistency.

A year ago, the right-handed Bahnsen posted a 10-7 record for Toledo—then the New York Yankees' IL farm—and posted a 2.91 earned-run average that was fourth-best in the league.

This year is another matter, though naturally the weak support he often receives has contributed to his woes. Today, Bahnsen had a 4-6 record, an ERA above 4.00, and only three complete games in 13 starts.

The 15th start came Monday night against Toledo, and this time Bahnsen worked his shortest stint this year: one inning plus two batters in the second.

In that span, the Mud Hens collected four hits, a walk, and five runs, eventually winning their fourth game in a row, 8-3.

In other games, league-leading Rochester whipped Columbus in the opener of a twin bill 5-0, but lost the afterpiece to the Jets 6-3; Richmond blanked Toronto 4-0 and Buffalo downed Jacksonville 4-1.

Toledo, which now is tied for third place after winning eight of its last nine games collected 16 hits—only one for extra bases in its rout of Syracuse. The Chiefs have lost 12 of their last 14 starts.

Rochester's Tommy Arruda allowed only one hit—a seventh-inning single by Manny Jimenez—in the Red Wings' opening-game victory over Columbus.

But in the nightcap, ex-Red Wing southpaw Billy Short and reliever Sam Jones combined for an eight-hit while the Jets banged out 10 hits.

Richmond right-hander Ed Rakow, who last week fanned 18 Toronto batters while pitching 13 scoreless innings against the Maple Leafs, turned on his old mates once more. He twirled a four-hit shutout as the Braves kept the Leafs from gaining ground on Rochester. Mike Page knocked in three of the Richmond runs with three singles.

Bob Perry's three-run homer and Don Zarni's six-hit pitching saw Buffalo past Jacksonville. The Bisons' Frank Obregon collected two doubles and now has hit safely in nine straight games.

Meadow Elva Yonkers Winner
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Sholly drove favored Meadow Elva through a stretch battle with Toro Crest and won the $5,000 race at Yonkers Raceway Monday night, capturing the evening's top harness racing event in New York State.

Sholly, a top-rated driver, took the 3-year-old daughter of Thorpe Hanover across the finish line in 2:08, a length ahead of Toro Crest. Embury Hanover was third in the mile contest.

The winner returned $2.80.

In races featured at other harness tracks across the state: Buffalo Raceway — Jack Pot Lobell ($35.20), a 3-year-old colt overlooked by the veterans, won the $3,500 proximity trot by more than three lengths, defeating Victory special and third-place Mar Con General in 2:13 3-5.

Vernon Downs—Arbida Hanover ($13) scored a three-length wire-to-wire victory over Fantasia Hanover and third-place Glynis Hanover in the $2,000 trot for 2-year-old fillies in 2:07 3-5.

The time was 2:07 3-5.

Saratoga Raceway — After Day ($3.60) whipped Admirable Pick by two lengths and won the $800 race in 2:05 4-5, Kawartha Leo finished third.

Sports Briefs

NEW YORK (AP) — Mac Miller, trainer of Assagai who finished second behind Piker and ahead of Buckpasser in the Bowling Green Handicap, said Monday the 1966 turf champion will be shipped to France for the Grand Prix de St. Cloud July 2.

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Harry B. "Doc" Knisely was named Monday commissioner of the newly organized 17-member Rocky Mountain Athletic Conference. He has been director of information for the Western Athletic Conference since 1965.

NEW YORK (AP) — Wheatley Stable sold Stupendous, a leading handicap horse with winnings of $181,683, Monday for an undisclosed price for stud duty beginning next year in England.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Veteran Ruth Deffrey of Melrose, Mass., reigned today as New England women's tennis champion for the second time.

Miss Jeffrey, seeded second, rallied to win the title with a 3-6, 6-4, 8-6 victory over 13-year-old Andrea Volkos of Pawtucket, R.I., in a rain-interrupted match Monday at the Newton Squash and Tennis Club.

SOUTH EGREMONT, Mass. (AP) — The American Hockey League's annual meeting was under way today with a committee report on a proposed merger with the Western League among top items on the agenda.

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — "When you lose, you keep your mouth shut," said U.S. Davis Cup Captain George MacCall, and his team had little to say after their humiliating defeat at the hands of tennis mid-geat Ecuador.

"Ecuador beat us fair and square," was all Cliff Richey could say after the South Americans took an insurmountable 3-1 lead Monday.

Arthur Ashe, the No. 1 player in the United States, said nothing, making himself unavailable for comment after his second straight embarrassing loss.

He left his country on the outside looking in for the sixth time in eight years in the preliminary rounds.

Ashe, of Richmond, Va., on leave from the Army, lost to unheralded Francisco Guzman, 6-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3 Monday, eliminating the United States in the American Zone final.

Ecuador the heavy underdog which has never before reached the quarter-finals in this struggle for world amateur tennis supremacy, thus moved into the interzone semifinals. It will meet the winner of the European Zone A final between Spain and Russia.

Richey, of San Angelo, Tex., who beat Guzman in the first singles Saturday, will complete the best-of-five series today after his now meaningless match against Miguel Olvera was suspended Monday. Richey was leading 5-7 6-4, 7-5.

Rosewall Wins Pro Net Tourney
By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Australia's Ken Rosewall won the $10,000 U.S. Professional Hardcourt Tennis Tournament Monday night with a 6-3, 6-4 victory over Andres Gimeno of Spain.

The victory, third for Rosewall in the last four stops the pros have made on their summer American tour, was worth $2,300. Gimeno the defending champion in the meet, earned $1,600.

Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., topped Aussie Fred Stolle, 21-19 for third place in the singles. The match, which lasted one hour and 55 minutes, was shortened to one set by agreement of the players and tournament officials. Both players are rookies on the tour.

Ralston, second among the pros in money winning this year, won $1,100 with his triumph and boosted his earnings to $28,330. Stolle collected $900.
